The UCO Human Resource Society is hosting a special workshop with a nationally recognized motivational speaker. Rhett Laubach, whose program has been credited with coaching many leaders like Miss America Jennifer Berry and National FFA President Travis Jett, will speak Feb. 16 in the Troy Smith Lecture Hall in the Business Administration Building at 7:30 p.m. The topic of discussion will be "The Art of Annoying People." So, feel free to bring along those annoying coworkers.

Rhett Laubach has co-authored inspirational books like "Possibilities" and "Teen Power and Beyond." His speaking talents have taken him to over 35 states nation-wide. His audiences include adults in the workplace as well as students. Topics of specialization include leadership, speech coaching, team building, and communication training. Rhett is the owner and operator of the local YourNextSpeaker, LLC, which is located, right here in Edmond and offers a wide range of services including helping organizations achieve personal and professional leadership. His specialization is considered to be the ultimate leadership resource. With his energy and motivation, audience members will be on the edge of their seats.

Organizers say it's a "great opportunity" for young people to get motivated about their future and to learn about opportunities that UCO offers. HR Society meetings are held every other Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Troy Smith Lecture Hall. Get there early to get a good seat. Also, there will be a raffle and prizes. Attendees are urged to stay after the meeting to see what UCO HR Society has to offer. Among the opportunities are internships, which can provide experience while attending college.
